

Percentage of Houses which used Thatches as their main Roof Materials by Political Districts, 2011

The Population and Housing Census 2011 reported that there were 51,240 houses enumerated in Samoa, and out of this number 14 percent or 7,425 houses used thatches as their main roof materials. The map above shows the distribution of 7,425 houses which used thatches as roof materials by political districts and in percentage. The first colour red indicates that 7 political districts have the highest percentage of houses with thatches roof materials from the range of 24 to 26 percent while the last colour green shows that 9 political districts have the lowest percentage of houses which used thatches as their roof materials from a range of 3 to 12 percent.

Overall out of 7,425 houses which used thatches as their main roof materials, 66 percent or 4,937 houses were located on Upolu Island including (Manono and Apolima) while 34 percent or 2,488 houses were on the big island of Savaii.

For more information please contact the Samoa Bureau of Statistics at phone: 21373/62000.

